Waldorf One World

WOW

DAY

29 September 2011

Your commitment to a different world.

"If a family has to work their fields, all villagers come together and join forces. It is impressive, what is possible from a collective effort and you have also proved this on a much larger scale with WOW-Day. The revenue from your commitment will benefit initiatives around the world, which work under most difficult circumstances for a more humane and a fulfilling education. Your commitment is encouraging and strengthens the work of each initiative. Thank you very much!"

Bettina Vielmetter, Pro Humanus, Peru

On 29 September 2011 we are joining forces all over Europe, from Berlin to Dublin, from Oslo to Ljubljana. With your ideas and activities such as crafts and sales campaigns, sponsored runs or jobs in companies, we will raise money to support Waldorf- and social initiatives around the globe. – Join us and together we will make a difference!

In recent years, WOW-Day has brought about fantastic results. In 2010, almost 150 Waldorf schools, from 14 countries, participated with extraordinary dedication and the commitment of many hours of work and we raised about 300.000,- Euros. This large amount enables us to support disadvantaged children in more than 40 initiatives in more than 20 countries.

You can help ensure that schools, kindergartens and social projects receive vital aid, enable children in Kenya to attend school, provide opportunities in the favelas in Brazil, and allow people with disabilities in Georgia to live a dignified life.

Applications are open to all classes, grades 1 to 13.

Under www.freunde-waldorf.de you can find everything you need as a download: many ideas for WOW Day activities, information about the initiatives, photos and press materials for local newspapers, legal information for the school, sample employment contracts for employers, etc.

For registration an email from your school's contact person to berlin@freunde-waldorf.de is sufficient.

Here are a few examples:

Shanti Sewa Griha, Nepal

Shanti Sewa Griha does social work for people, living at the margins of society: the poor, lepers and people with disabilities. Over time a Waldorf school, a kindergarten, a farm, workshops, a clinic, a soup kitchen and even two villages have developed. Thus more than 1500 people have found protection, care and a meaningful task.

Gamot means roots, or medicine, Cogon is a grass variety, known for its extensive network of roots and its healing forces. The school began with four children. Meanwhile, the roots have deepened. Over one hundred students, mostly from the rural, economically weak environment attend school on a daily basis.

CES Waldorf, Colombia

At the edge of Colombia's capital Bogota, rural migrants seek a new life under the toughest conditions. CES Waldorf helps them with tutoring in reading, writing, mathematics, as well as handicraft, music and theatre. A doctor treats diseases and effects of malnutrition. Outings provide new inspiration for the kids, and social workers visit the families.

In the townships of Cape Town every day about 50 Educare Centres open their doors. Dedicated women, the mothers, as they are called, collect the children from the streets, give them space to play and learn in a world without drugs, crime and violence. WOW-Day revenues allow more teachers' training.

Pro Humanus, Peru

In the fertile valleys of the Andes people live in traditional clay brick houses, speaking the Quechua language and maintaining their cultural roots. After the severe earthquake in 2007 and the relief aid of Pro Humanus, the residents asked the initiative to continue its work and thus a "School on the Road" was launched.

"You can not imagine what your activity on WOW-Day means for the children in the rain forest. They will now receive education throughout the year. Because of you hundreds of children can now learn how to read and write." Manuela Barriga, Freiwillige, Estrella del Sur, Peru
