

Dr. Ida Oberman

Dr. Ida Oberman is an independent education consultant. A classroom teacher for a decade, Dr. Oberman is also co-founder of a public school inspired by Waldorf bordering Harlem in New York City's District 3. Dutch born and German educated (Tübingen Waldorfschool), she received her BA from Swarthmore and her PhD from Stanford. She has served as education program officer for the Hewlett Foundation and Director of Research & Evaluation with Springboard Schools where she led the California Best Practice Study of high performing, high poverty schools in the state. Her forthcoming book with Mellen Press is titled The Waldorf Movement from European Cradle to American Crucible, 1919–2007: Fidelity and Flexibility in Waldorf Education.